Formula for the proportional allocation of members:

If organisations within a particular constituency cannot reach agreement on the allocation of seats per organisation, then the principle of proportionality must be applied on the basis of the following formula.

The formula is

$$\frac{A}{B} \times \frac{C}{1} = D$$

- (1) A represents either –
- (a) the number of employees employed by the members of a sector-relevant employers’ organisation; or
  - (b) the number of members of a sector-relevant trade union
- (2) B represents either –
- (a) the total number of employees employed by all the employers who are members of all sector-relevant employers organisations; or
  - (b) the total membership of all the sector-relevant trade unions
- (3) C represents 10.
- (4) D represents either –
- (a) the number of Members whom an employer organisation may nominate for the Accounting Authority; or
  - (b) the number of Members that a trade union may nominate for the Accounting Authority.
- (5) For example: If there are only two trade unions, one with 600 members and the other with 1 000 members, they would be proportionally represented on the Accounting Authority as follows –

600	10		1,000	10
—	x	—	=	3.75
1,600	1		1,600	1
—	x	—	=	6.25

- (a) The trade union with 600 members would nominate forty percent (40%) of the five (5) Members representing Organised Labour.
- (b) The trade union with 1 000 members would nominate sixty percent (60%) of the five (5) Members representing Organised Labour.
